Why Hagemeister ?

Karl Hagemeister is one of the most important and well-known painters in the Mark Brandenburg. He was born here on our beautiful island town of Werder an der Havel on March 12, 1848, the son of the fruit grower Carl Friedrich Hagemeister and his wife Luise Frederike Puhlmann. Early on he found a special sense for the harsh beauty of the Brandenburg landscape and initially worked as a drawing teacher at an elementary school in Berlin Pankow. From 1871 he studied at the free drawing school in Weimar and undertook study trips to Munich and the Alps. There he met the Viennese painter Carl Schuch (1846 – 1903), with whom he became friends for many years. Joint study trips to Austria, Belgium, Holland and Italy followed. In 1877 Hagemeister settled in Ferch. Here in his Brandenburg homeland, which he loved, he found his own themes and motifs. It was the villages and landscapes around the Schwielowsee that inspired him to paint more and more landscape details such as a section of a pond bank, a stream, a group of trees or stones. He described his processing of the Impressionist style of painting, the capture of the random moment in a random detail, in contours dissolved by light and movement, as follows:

"I realized that movement is part of breathing life and that this can only be achieved through the finest differences in the application of paint. When I see things in landscapes, I always notice a struggle between light and air for dominance over them."

He increasingly painted landscapes with strong colors, worked with brush and spatula with fingers and palms of the hand and reduced the selected detail to just a water lily or a wave remains. Although Karl Hagemeister took part in the major exhibitions in Berlin and was a founding member of the Berlin Secession, he remained unnoticed for a long time, probably because he found his own style as a quiet outsider, independent of the art scene in the metropolis and the prevailing art movements. It was not until 1912, when some larger galleries in Hamburg and Munich took notice of him, that he found public honor and attention. In 1914 he was appointed "Royal Prussian Professor" and in 1923, on his 75th birthday, he became a member of the Prussian Academy of Arts. The National Gallery honored him with an exhibition. Karl Hagemeister's simple lifestyle did not change, despite later recognition. He died in Werder on August 5th, 1933. We appreciate him and love his works.
